Guidelines for the selection and activation of the elective courses
Graduate Degree Program
Food and Planetary Health

The study prospectus for the Graduate Degree offers 4 elective courses delivered in the second semester of the first year and in the first semester of the second year. Students must take 2 elective courses, freely chosen from those offered, one per year.

Course selection
In order to plan course content as effectively as possible based on the number of participants, during September and October of the first year, and then during March and April of the first year, students will be asked to choose one of the two courses offered. Choice submission will be handled by the administrative office using the most suitable means for this purpose.
The University reserves the right not to activate a course if the number of enrolled students is fewer than 5.

Inclusion in the study plan
First-year Graduate Degree students must enroll by completing the Study Plan, which must be submitted by 31 October each year.
Second-year Graduate Degree students must enroll by completing the Study Plan, which must be submitted by 30 September each year

AUDITING STUDENTS
Students are allowed to attend classes for elective courses NOT INCLUDED in their Study Plan, provided that:
- they are taken in addition to those already included for the academic year of attendance;
- prior authorization has been obtained from the course instructor;
- they do not overlap with classes of the course included in the Study Plan.

PLEASE NOTE
Students are required to take exams only for the courses in which they are enrolled. This option is not available to auding students.
